12. Choice

Like many other companies, we do not honor DNT flags but instead offer other choices with respect to third-parties. Many third parties participate in self-regulation to offer you a choice regarding receiving targeted ads. Please note that you'll still see generic ads after opting out depending on your browser and settings, but they won't be based on your activities online. On the web, you can opt out of participating companies by visiting the following sites:

- http://optout.networkadvertising.org/
- http://optout.aboutads.info/
- http://youronlinechoices.eu/
- https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout
- https://support.apple.com/en-us/HT202074

If you wish to similarly opt out of cross-app advertising on mobile devices, you can enable the Limit Ad Tracking flag on the device. Enabling Limit Ad Tracking sends a flag to third parties that you wish to opt out of targeted advertising on that device, and major mobile platforms require companies to honor this flag. Screenshots on how to find these options on various devices are available here: http://www.networkadvertising.org/mobile-choices. To learn how to opt out on other devices, please visit the platform's privacy policies for more information.
